

These Are the Days

Van Morrison & Natalie Cole

This is the time to live the dream
For us to find the strength to reach
All of the hopes we hold
As real as flesh and bone This is the place for us to be Truly proud and truly free
These are the days that we can really call our own These are the days
To breathe and feel
To touch the skies
To name our dreams
And make them real And never close our eyes We've fought the fears
We've braved the years
When all we could believe was all we had give
Now what we only dream is what we live
These are the days
To breathe and feel
To touch the skies To name our dreams
And make them real
And never close our eyes
We've fought the fears
We've braved the years
When all we could believe was all we had to give
Now what we only dream is what we live
When I just take a look around
Every face, every sound
Tells me that I will never need to feel alone
And even though i know that i can spread my wings and fly
Today, tomorrow this will always be my home
These are the days
To breathe and feel
To touch the skies
To name our dreams
And make them real
And never close our eyes
We've fought the fears
We've braved the years
When all we could believe was all we had to give
Now what we only dreamed is what we live
These are the days
To breathe and feel
To touch the skies
To name our dreams
And make them real

So don't you close your eyes
We've fought the fears
We've braved the years
When all we could believe was all we had to give
Now what we only dreamed is what we live
All through the dark roads that we've tread
When a dream was all we had
The thought of our home is still a whisper, barely heard
We raised our flag upon the shore
And sang out we are Singapore
We learnt that home is really more than just a word
Today, tomorrow this will always be my HOME
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>