

Kelly's Bar

Trampled By Turtles

I was singin' like a stone in Red Wing, Minnesota
In a bar called Kelly's right next to the train
It shakes the walls and you have to stop talkin'
It's never much different but it's never the same
And the guy next to me he was fightin' for nothin'

Love that was over and a knife in the back
I was seein' double so I went out walkin'
I didn't know if I would ever get back
Met a girl downtown and she was covered in lightning
She thought my weakness was drownin' but I didn't agree
Well the cops were out watching everybody that was driving
Any one of you here could sing it better than me
And the sun was risin' on the banks of the river
I was dying in Tom's back yard
No idea how I ended up Winona

No idea how I let it go this far
And every summer there that I can remember
I'm certain this person meant a lot to me
Yeah maybe I've changed, yeah baby everybody changes
And maybe you're not where you thought you would be
But I dream about it on the nights when I'm sleepin'
And I wake up screamin' in my own damn bed
Yeah I'll work harder at the people that I'm keepin'
If you work harder getting outta my head

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>