

Seasons to Cycles

10 Years

How small do you want me to be,
Weighed in the balance left lonely,
So much can be said through silence. As hard as it seems,
All that we need is to close to be seen. Our lives,
You build your walls for me to climb,
A billion walls for me to climb,
You build your walls for me to climb.
Travels the very nature we live in,
Seasons to cycles children to men. Mislead and misread,
Company or companion,
With all of our hearts,
We follow our dreams,
Slightly out of reach. Our lives,
You build your walls for me to climb,
A billion walls for me to climb,
You build your walls for me to climb.
Our lives,
You build your walls for me to climb,
A billion walls for me to climb,
You build your walls for me to climb.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>