Machine (with Herbie Hancock)

Josh Groban

Rising above tension below
Learn from the in-between
Blinded by trust, asleep to the truth
Awakened by disbelief
Somewhere I found strength in my soul
Still you refuse to seeAre you sure I'm not all right?
'Cause lately I've been feeling fine!
Every lifeline leads its own way to the heavens
But I have seen you run in circles, unforgiven
Is there anything in this world that can make you stop?!
Oh, you're a machine!

Oh, you're a machine! A world of your own Hollow inside

Careful when worlds collide

I'm filling my life With all it can hold

Carry it on with pride

Are you sure I'm not all right?

Cause lately I've been feeling fine! Every lifeline leads its own way to the heavens

But I have seen you run in circles, unforgiven

Is there anything in this world that can make you stop?!

Oh, you're a machine!

The sun's still above

All the rain that's coming down

And I can feel the clouds drifting away

And now the sky is open wide!

Turn the light on, you will see things

So much clearer

Ohh, but there's no heart

Oh, there's no heart, and I've spent all this time feeling

Something you can't feel at all!

You're a machine!

Oh, you're a machine.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/