Broken Horse

Freelance Whales

October's got those orange eyes

But somehow I still lost sight

When you lifted the lid off of my pumpkin head

And kissed me goodnightShe could be a thorn in my side

We never quite broke that horse

She slept in the cul-de-sac right

Seven miles from my front porchBundle up and come with me now

Down the road where to the burned down barn

We could make a blanket of coats

And breathe our souls into the neighbor's front lawnBut, oh god, that look in your eye

Trouble that does not search words

It sprung from the biblical vine and

Awaiting to return to the dirt

The stitches in your winter clothes

Your cello bows

We stole your hair to make them

We're sorry for the iron shoes

We nailed to you

And stuck you in the rain

And then you sprinted away

Sprinted away to where I don't know

God's moving in your bloodstream

Where the cross beats aren't so slowYou swept all the red from my cheeks

I didn't hear you come back inside

I light up the gas in the den

And stand there in the thin winter light

But, oh god, that curve in your spine

A question mark, a doctor's sigh

Was framed by the windowsill

And you saw something I did not in that night

You saw something I did not in that night

The stitches in your winter clothes

Your cello bows

We stole your hair to make them

We're sorry for the iron shoes

We nailed to you

And stuck you in the rain

And then you sprinted away

Sprinted away to where I don't know

God's moving in your bloodstream

Where the cross beats aren't so slow
