Thirty One Today

Aimee Mann

Thirty-one today
What a thing to say
Drinking Guinness in the afternoon
Taking shelter in the black cocoonI thought my life would be different somehow
I thought my life would be better by now
I thought my life would be different somehow
I thought my life would be better by now
But it's not, and I don't know where to turn
Called some guy I knew
Had a drink or two

And we fumbled as the day grew dark

I pretended that I felt a sparkI thought my life would be different somehow

I thought my life would be better by now

I thought my life would be different somehow

I thought my life would be better by now

But it's not, and I don't know where to turn
No, it's not, and I don't know where to turn
No, it's not, and I don't know where to turn Faster comes and

No, it's not, and I don't know where to turnEaster comes and goes Maybe Jesus knows

So you roll on with the best you can
Getting loaded, watching CNN
I thought my life would be different somehow
I thought my life would be better by now
I thought my life would be different somehow
I thought my life would be better by now
But it's not, and I don't know where to turn
No, it's not, and I don't know where to turn

No, it's not, and I don't know where to turn No, it's not, and I don't know where to turn No, it's not, and I don't know
