

The Separation of Church & Skate

NOFX

NOFX

Miscellaneous

The Separation Of Church And Skate lost in a sea of combat boots, flush the bouncers with wasted youth

when did punk rock become so safe, when did the scene become a joke the kids who used to live for beer and speed now want their fries and coke cursing and flipping birds are not allowed, in fact let's keep noise levels down must separate the church and skate when dont we put pad on the kids, helmets, head gear and mouth pieces they we could pad the floor and walls, put cameras inside bathroom stalls we make sure only nice bands play, and we could sing my country 'tis of thee sweet land of liberty when did punk rock become so safe i know it wasnt Duane or Fletcher, who put up the barricades like a skate in the heart, somehow we got driven apart i want conflict i want dissent, i want the scene to represent our hatred of authority, our fight against complacency stop singing songs about girls and love, you killed the owl you freed the dove confrontation and politics replaced with harmonies and shticks when did punk rock become so tame, these fucking bands all sound the same we want our fights we want our thugs, we want our burns we want our drungs where is the violent apathy, these fucking records are rated G Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>