Continuum

Erra

This moment's passing breeze feels like your tender breath I used to know so well The silence is crushing the white noise that used to call my nameBreak down and all my thoughts have escaped me Except for all the things that show me your face ever so brightlyPoised through a life that still remains Such little left that I can say with authenticity So I...Close my eyes And I can hear you calling from behind Close my eyes I swear I feel you crawling towards the lightTell me the words that will keep you closePoor soul, heart full Temperature fluctuates To later be buried in my own personal graveyard of emotion and past mistakes Close my eyes And I can hear you calling from behind Close my eyes I swear I feel you crawling towards the lightMy skin is turning white Watching your soul in flight Close my eyes I swear I feel you crawling towards the lightThe bloody beat beat in my chest The coldest chill creeping up my neck Tell me the words that will keep you closeLife won't feel the same anymore 'cause you're gone And it's far too late to say the things I'm sorry forFive fingers gripping the glass For the last time I'd hope to say Three nights with no separation I know too well there's one more thing I could have said Life won't feel the same anymore 'cause you're gone And it's far too late to say the things I'm sorry forI can't take it back I can't bring you back Life won't feel the same anymore 'Cause you're gone And I'm holding on Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/