

I've Lost You

Elvis Presley

Lying by your side I watch you sleepin'
And in your face the sweetness of a child
Murmuring the dream you won't recapture
Though it will haunt the corners of your mind Oh, I've lost you
    Though you're near me
    And your body's still as kind
    I've lost you on the journey
But I can't remember where or when Who can tell when summer turns to autumn
    And who can point the moment love grows cold
    Softly without pain the joy is over
    Though why it's gone we' neither of us know
    Oh, I've lost you yes, I've lost you
    I can't reach you anymore
    We ought to talk it over now
But reason can't stand in for feeling low Oh, I've lost you yes, I've lost you
    I can't reach you anymore
    We ought to talk it over now
But reason can't stand in for feeling Six o'clock the baby will be crying
    And you will stumble, sleeping to the door
    In the chill and sun gray of morning
We play the parts that we have learned too well Oh, I've lost you, I've lost you
    Oh you won't admit it so
    I've lost you on the journey
But I can't remember where or when oh love
    Oh, I've lost you yes, I've lost you
    I can't reach you anymore
    We ought to talk it over now
But the reason can't stand in for feeling low Oh, I've lost you yes, I've lost you
    I can't reach you anymore
    We ought to talk it over now
    But reason can't stand in Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>