

It's True Love (feat. Greta Salpeter)

Forgive Durden

Adakias

It seems to me like every star agreed to meet
Right over our heads tonight, to flex their bright
The light collects in your eyes
Turns and reflects, jumps into mine
I'm a slave to the sight
My hands shake,
Our minds race from the thought of love,
Yet we curb our speech because words are not enough
To etch this instant, burn this moment, into our memory
Let go. Take my hand and trust in me
Anhura, can't you see, that we were meant to be?
It's true love, it's true love...
It's true love, it's true love...Anhura
I never would guess your touch could
Fill me with such thoughts to marry you, have your babies, too
Is it too good to be true?
I can't let her learn about my past
If she found out where I came from, she'd turn so fast
And not look back, I can't go back, I just won't go back!
I can't slow down, I'm scared I'm falling too fast.
Adakias, can't you see that I knew at first kiss?
We were meant to be!
Don't you ever feel like you've been destined
For something bigger than your skin?
Anhura
Don't you ever feel like you've been destined
For something bigger than your skin?
I can feel it,
Affirming my significance,
Rendering me weightless
Confirming my purpose
Tendons tensing in it's wake,
Shifting my shoulder blades,
Trickling down my veins,
it's a subtle as a tidal wave
It's true love, it's true love...
It's true love, it's true love...
It's true love, it's true love...
It's true love, it's true love...Narrator
Love was everywhere, you could taste it in the air.
The couple was eager to trade vows, to float away, and settle down

But first, Adakias had to meet Anhura's father, his Majesty, the one and only.
His Royal Highness, the King.
He had to kiss his jeweled fist and bow to the crown, kneeling on the ground.
He would propound to become her prince

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>