Let the Poison Spill from Your Throat

The Faint

Some people get bit from the inside When they talk it's cold and sour And no, there's nothing they can do now They've had their way too many times If you glare to get what you want It'll become your look If there's dirt you've got on someone You'll let it loose without a thought Just let the poison spill Spurt from your throat Hiss like steam Because the pressure is unreal I'm not saying that it's not You're causing a scene You're wearing out that note You scream until it's gone You scream until it's gone, gone, goneNo government check can reverse it You'd need a royal eclipse of the tongue Or is the pain that you endure no Something you need Well, you know how to get it There's no climbing up that list You just move down it one by one You hate this and this and love that it shows You're insecure, but that's no excuse

Just tell them they lie
You tell them the truth
The things you won't take are coming in groups
The people abused the trust that you had
And now you don't want it back
