After an Afternoon

Jason Mraz

I bare my windowed self untamed and untrained
Dreams that hardly touch our complexions truest faults
If room enough for both my drowsy spirit shall fall
Bold waves tumble oh to the season of my heart
And you have offended my faith and my trust
Until all is lost into the beauty of the day
Until all is lost, until all is lostBut there's something in the way you laugh

And it makes me feel like a child Aspects of life they confuse me You and your thesis amuse me Oh, after and afternoon with you And your rich brown eyes Your lips and dark hair

Elbows and exposed knees tossing toward the ceiling After an after, after an afternoon After an after, after an afternoon with you

Face to palm
Tear to tear
Mouth to tongue
Heart to ground
Heart to ground
Heart to ground
I am in love
