

Fire In the Sky

John Butler Trio

Fire in the sky outta the blue and into the red depths,
Time for you and I to try to fall asleep in the bed they've made us,
All came crumbling down tears in our eyes as it rained confusion the whole world has changed
But I don't understand how one can kill a man in the name peace, that's ridiculous They say I colonize, so they fire from the sky and they come outta nowhere Time for you and I to turn on the big screen see what's happening'
And as those children die, pawns in the game of collateral damage,
The whole world goes mad,
Standing your on quick sand, the more we fight we sink
And vengeance gives us hope, at least that's what we think, at least that's what we think.
As we make amends on getting our revenge, We solved nothing now, to sad to look down but with God on both sides, death is justified, wateva the name, and we all feel pain.
As those spirits fly, to honor those who have past, we got to get along, while the time still lasts Burry the hatchet deep so we all can grieve and heal all this pain and so we can live again, so we can live again but as we make amends on getting our revenge, We solved nothing now, to sad to look down but with God on both sides, death is justified, whatever the name, and we all feel pain.
But I don't understand how one can kill a man in the name peace, that's ridiculous
But I understand that I will defend my family, from both sides of misery.
