California

Rufus Wainwright

California, California You're such a wonder that I think I'll stay in bed Big time rollers, part time models So much to plunder that I think I'll sleep insteadI don't know this sea of neon, thousand surfers, whiffs of freon And big nights back east with Rhoda California, pleaseThere's a moment I've been saving A kind of crucifix around this munchkin land Up north freezing, little me drooling That's Entertainment's on at eight Come on Ginger, slam I don't know this sea of neon, thousand surfers, whiffs of freon And my new grandma Bea Arthur Come on overAin't it a shame that at the top Peanut butter and jam they served you Ain't it a shame that at the top Still those soft skin boys can bruise you Yes, I fell for a streakerI don't know this sea of neon, thousand surfers, whiffs of freonAin't it a shame that all the world Can't enjoy your mad traditions Ain't it a shame that all the world Don't got keys to their own ignitions Life is the longest death in California California, you're such a wonder that I think I'll stay in bed So much to plunder that I think I'll sleep instead You're such a wonder that I think I'll stay in bedSo much to plunder that I think I'll sleep instead Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/