Loved Too Much

Ty Herndon

You say you love me a little You say you want to stay friends You say you don't want no strings attached No one on you to dependYou see love as a prison I see love as a key You think a little is more than enough It's not that way for meI need to be loved too much I need to be held too tight I need to hear someone say at the end of the day I'll make everything right When the rest of the world goes home I need to feel someone's touch I've been alone too long Now I need to be loved too much Too much sun will burn you Too much rain you'll drown too Too much cold will freeze you Too much wind will blow you downBut love is something different That disregards the rules You call me a dreamer But sometimes dreams come trueI need to be loved too much I need to be held too tight I need to hear someone say at the end of the day I'll make everything right When the rest of the world goes home I need to feel someone's touch I've been alone too long Now I need to be loved too much I need to be loved too much I need to be held too tight

I'll make everything right
When the rest of the world goes home
I need to feel someone's touch
I've been alone too long
Now I need to be loved too muchOh, I need to be loved too much
Yes, I need to be loved too much

I need to hear someone say at the end of the day
