Stateless

Woke up with a start, your voice in my head last night Now I can't remember a single word Images come back flashing like a broken light Everything has gotten a little blurredSnapped another thread, burned another bridge last night How come I can act like such a fool? I'm chasing it around, feels like an addiction Guess I'll disregard it, make it disappearEverything we said is messing with my head I'm hanging by a thread and it's waningYou're just a little scared of being lonely And I am, I am too You're just a little scared of being lonely And I am, I am too Images come back flashing like a broken light And everything has gotten a little blurred It's chasing me around, it feels like an affliction Guess I'll have to face it, make it disappearEverything we said is messing with my head I'm hanging by a thread and it's waningYou're just a little scared of being lonely And I am, I am too You're just a little scared of being lonely And I am, I am tooYou're just a little scared now, you're just a little scared now You're just a little scared of being lonely You're just a little scared of being lonely And I am, I am too You're just a little scared now, you're just a little scared now You're just a little scared of being lonely You're just a little scared of being lonely And I am. I am too
