

Everything In Its Own Time

Indigo Girls

remember everything i told you keep it in your heart like a stone and when the winds have blown things round and back again what was once your pain will be your home all around the table the white haired men have gathered spilling their sons' blood like table wine (spilling their sons' blood)
remember everything i told you everything in its own time the music whispers you in urgency hold fast to that languageless connection a thread of known that was unknown and unseen seen dangling from inside the fifth direction (dangling from inside the fifth direction)
boys around the table are mapping out their strategies kings all of mountains one day dust a lesson learned a loving god and things in their own time in nothing more do i trust we own nothing nothing is ours
not even love so fierce it burns like baby stars but this poverty is our greatest gift (nothing is ours)
the weightlessness of us as things around begin to shift (the weightlessness as things begin to shift) remember everything i told you (remember everything i told you)
keep it in your heart like a stone (keep it in your heart like a stone)
and when the winds have blown things round and back again (when the winds have blown things round) what was once your pain will be your home everything in its own time everything in its own time oh oh
oh

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>