Left To Dry

Shaimus

She was left alone to dry

To contemplate the things that her other half denied

And a wave of grief in sight

Was cresting and the crash had drowned all her thoughts insideShe was left alone today

To think about the things she had only yesterday

She don't know how he got away

All's fair in love and war but it's an ugly price to payShe felt like she was left

Like she wasLeft to dry

She was left alone to heal the wounds that hurt from deep inside

She was left to dry

She had something great

She would have changed if she could make it right

She will sleep alone tonight

And the torment of her mind will keep her up to analyze

All the bait and all the brine

Bitter is the taste there is no sweet to this goodbyeShe felt like she was left

Like she wasLeft to dry

She was left alone to heal the wounds that hurt from deep inside

She was left to dry

She had something great

She would have changed if she could make it rightAnd like the splinters from a ship drying on the shoreline

Part of something great but nothing by itself

This love was broken taking part of her away with him

Pieces lying in the sand and broken shells

In the sand and broken shells

She felt like she was left

Like she wasLeft to dry

She was left alone to heal the wounds that hurt from deep inside

She was left to dry

She had something great

She would have changed if she could make it rightShe was left to dry

She was left alone to heal the wounds that hurt from deep inside

She was left to dry

She had something great

She would have changed if she could make it right
