

Where I Let You Down (Numb)

I See Stars

Feeling too comfortable in my thoughts
Life's Drifting away, day by day
Starting to wonder off and see that I'm alone
If this is fate, should I leave or stay? So I guess that this is starting over
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover
Don't make a sound
This is the part where I let you, where I let you down The problem is, is you thought that you had me at hello
You were wrong, so damn wrong
It's a summer, with no lover
Well I could never look forward to something more
So I guess that this is starting over
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover
So don't make a sound
This is the part where I let you, where I let you down
Hold your hands high, read between the lines,
When I still had time Well I could never look forward to something more
To a summer with no lover
I could never look forward to something more [Feeling too comfortable in my head, starting to wonder if you did it on your own] So I guess this is starting over
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover
So don't make a sound
This is the part where I let you, where I let you down
So I guess that this is starting over (Hold your hands high)
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover (Read between the lines)
So don't make a sound (Where I still had time)
This is the part where I let you down, I let you down

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>