Where I Let You Down (Numb)

I See Stars

Feeling too comfortable in my thoughts
Life's Drifting away, day by day
Starting to wonder off and see that I'm alone
If this is fate, should I leave or stay? So I guess that this is starting over
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover

Don't make a sound

This is the part where I let you, where I let you downThe problem is, is you thought that you had me at hello

You were wrong, so damn wrong
It's a summer, with no lover
Well I could never look forward to something more
So I guess that this is starting over
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover

So don't make a sound

This is the part where I let you, where I let you down Hold your hands high, read between the lines,

When I still had timeWell I could never look forward to something more

To a summer with no lover

I could never look forward to something more[Feeling too comfortable in my head, starting to wonder if you did it on your own]So I guess this is starting over

Back to when I was your four-leaf clover

So don't make a sound

This is the part where I let you, where I let you down
So I guess that this is starting over (Hold your hands high)
Back to when I was your four-leaf clover(Read between the lines)
So don't make a sound(Where I still had time)
This is the part where I let you down. Het you down.

This is the part where I let you down, I let you down

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/