

Am I Still the One? (With Linda Perry)

Daniel Powter

I don't get much from heroes
I don't give them much thought I crumble under pressure, made of steel I'm not I don't like my reflection I don't like what I see I'm scared of my shadow, it cast this doubt on me But am I still the one?
Am I still the one?
Am I still the one? I was standing in your shadow just to understand your pain
But when I needed you the most you looked the other way
I wanted you to comfort me the moment we begun
I loved you through your nothingness
am I still the one You're coming through the windows, you're crawling through the floor You sent the spies to find me, now they're kicking down my door But am I still the one Am I still the one
Am I still the one I was standing in your shadow just to understand your pain
But when I needed you the most you looked the other way
There's nothing left but emptiness it's all been said and done
I know you want me to believe that I'm still the one So long to the angels You got me on the run Tell me that you'll never leave me again now you're sorry 'uhuh uh' Tell me that you'll never leave me again, now you're sorry 'uhuh uh' Tell me that you'll never leave me again, now you're sorry 'uhuh uh oh-huh-yo' Tell me that you'll never leave me again,
'all these lovers' sorry 'oh-huh-yo' Tell me that you'll never leave me again,
'all these lovers'
