Innocente

Delerium

You can't see my eyes
You can't see my eyes
They don't see yours
Hear me when I say
I don't mind at allIt's the rain that I hear coming
Not a stranger or a ghost
It's the quiet of a storm approaching

ne quiet of a storm approach

That I fear the most

It's the pain that I hear coming

The slightest crystal tear, drops to the ground

In silence, when my love is near

Darling, when did you fall? When was it over?

Darling when? When did you fall? When was it over?

It's marching through my door now

The stony cold of lonesome

A bell tolls for my heart and then my lonesome song begins

It's marching through my door now

The stony cold of lonesome

A bell tolls for my heart and now my lonesome song beginsDarling, when did you cry? I couldn't hear you

Darling when? When did you cry? I couldn't hear youI suppose it is the price of falling in love I suppose it is the price of falling in loveIt's the rain that I hear coming

Not a stranger, not a ghost

Of the quiet of a storm approaching

That I fear the most

It's the pain that I hear coming

The slightest crystal tear drops to the ground

In silence when my love is near

It's marching through my door now the stony cold of lonesome

A bell tolls for my heart and now my lonesome song will endDarling when did we fall? When was it over?

Darling when? When did we fall? When was it over? I suppose it is the price of falling in love I fear that it's the price of falling in love
