

The Sound of Your Heart

Four Year Strong

Take a second to discover that your skin is getting tougher
I suffered from a classic case of "nobody cares"
You've been building your walls up as high as you can What's the point of fighting back if you know you can't stand alone? It's time that you realize those days are gone
And they're never coming back So this is the sound of your heart
Well I thought it would be louder
The beats might be too far apart
When they slow to a stop you'll be dying to get back to the start
Sell your soul for a ticket to ride
You've been trying to find a reason to feel more alive
I've been calling the shots for as long as I can
So you're on your own and now you know what it's like to stand alone It's time that you realize
those days are gone
And they're never coming back
So this is the sound of your heart
Well I thought it would be louder
The beats might be too far apart
When they slow to a stop you'll be dying to get back to the start Show me the light in your heart Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>