

Whispers (Acoustic)

Passenger

Well I've got open eyes
And an open door
But I don't know what I'm searching for
I should know by now Well I've a big old heart
This I know for sure
But I don't know what my love is for
I should know by now
Well I wait in line
So I can wait some more
'Til I can't remember what I came here for
But I can't leave now
Cause I've a light that shines
And a love so pure
But I don't know what to use them for
I should know by now Well I spent my money, I lost my friends, I broke my mobile phone
3 a.m. and I'm drunk as hell, and I'm dancing on my own
Taxi-cabs ain't stopping, and I don't know my way home
Well it's hard to find a reason, when all you have is doubts
Hard to see inside yourself when can't see your way out
Hard to find an answer when the question won't come out
Everyone's filling me up with noise
I don't know what they're talking about
Everyone's filling me up with noise
I don't know what they're talking about
Everyone's filling me up with noise,
I don't know what they're talking about
You see all I need's a whisper in a world that only shouts
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>