

Drowns the Whiskey (feat. Miranda Lambert)

Jason Aldean

[Jason Aldean:]

All the folks down in Lynchburg, Tennessee
Been working hard for good ol' boys like me
I don't wanna be the one to tell 'em
That stuff that they've been selling
Ain't working like it should

But I damn sure wish it would [Jason Aldean & Miranda Lambert:]

Whiskey's supposed to drown the memory
I've gone from one to one too many
And the thing that really gets me
Is how your memory drowns the whiskey
Maybe it's the bar or the stool I'm on
Maybe it's the band and the sad old song
That keeps me buying rounds
That keeps me turning down
Any girl that wants to dance

And you ain't giving them a chance Whiskey's supposed to drown the memory

I've gone from one to one too many
And the thing that really gets me

Is how your memory drowns the whiskey Girl I don't have the proof that 80 proof

Ain't got a shot at touching you

But whiskey's supposed to drown the memory

I've gone from one to one too many
And the thing that really gets me

Is whiskey's supposed to drown the memory

I've gone from one to one too many
And the thing that really gets me

Is how your memory drowns the whiskey

Yeah the thing that really gets me

Is how your memory drowns the whiskey All the folks down in Lynchburg, Tennessee

Been working hard for good old boys like

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>