White Homes

Tilt

White frame lies to live in leave Nothing to gain Your Colorless divinities can scarcely light the way White frame homes in celibate rows They swell and melt together Aspirations lie in possesions each dwellers dream so similar[chorus] Keep witches behind Mythical lines And squeeze my faith between my knees I can't take one more lie So I'll take one of each In this static heat I barely make my home suffice Persuaded by a sleepy beat I can't tell which is minePack it in Save it up Pack it in Save it up In this static heat I barely make my home suffice Persuaded by a sleepy beat I can't tell which is mine Impeded by machine Awash in blue light spending nights Imbibing life through their screen

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/

it shows me to believe