Nature of the Experiment

Tokyo Police Club

We've got our tracks covered Thanks to your older brother It's not the moonlight that sets me off It's not the money that makes me scoffIt's my impeccable disorder Where I keep on falling for her It's not the way my mother talks It's not the people that she mocksIt's the nature of the experiment It's the patterns of my temperament It's the nature of the experiment They're taking me in increments We're halfway up the bracket The rain comes through my jacket It's not the stones inside my shoes It's not the risk of what's to loseIt's an ancient Russian proverb But I doubt it's ones that you've heard It's not the cracks beneath the floor It's not the fact that it's a chore It's the nature of the experiment It's the patterns of my temperament It's the nature of the experiment They're taking me in increments
