Oliver James

Fleet Foxes

On the way to your brother's house in the valley, dear, By the river bridge a cradle floating beside me. In the whitest water on the banks against the stone You will lift his body from the shore and bring him homeOliver James washed in the rain no longer Oliver James washed in the rain no longerOn the kitchen table that your grandfather did make You and your delicate way will slowly clean his fate And you will remember when you rehearsed the actions of A innocent and anxious mother full of anxious love Oliver James washed in the rain no longer Oliver James washed in the rain no longerWalk with me down the beach and through the valley floor Love for the one you know more Love for the one you know more Back we go to your brother's house emptier my dear The sound of ancient voices ringing soft upon your earOliver James washed in the rain no longer Oliver James washed in the rain no longer Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://www.1songlyrics.com/