Aesop Rock

(That's impossible) Come on Spoilers
The non bon-voyage stock weaponry and soylents
And whatever stopped the voices
Colossal paranoia's out to author an abrasive law
About how warpaint won't assure you ain't a painted whore, baby
No ground wires, all jaw froth
Mouth breathing outliers climb outta mothballs
Wrung stones unsung and alone
Known to run up in the unknown "Honey I'm home!"
I push a bucket of bolts, a sort of death in his wake
I take the hand off the thief, I take the head off a snake
Approach a pen like revolution's just a sentence away
Til then he's documenting cops and watching heaven decay
It's not a gentleman's game it's a generation raised accordingly
You'll know the differences between the cozy and the quarantine
Yes y'all the crest fallen care warn
Ear horn, heir whorin', heir whorin', air horn
These awful winds
Those grinding gears
This pile o' bones
That's why I'm here
Wild frontier
(Come on) These violent drums
Those primal fears
This pool of mud
That's why I'm here
W-w-w-w-wild frontier
That's impossible, body's still warm
Scavengers already obsessively knocking on his molecules
I'm catatonic fat and outta rocket fuel and ramen
Not a dollar watching Rocky II in Donatello boxers
At some hot as hell motel in what's supposed to be his Shangri La
More akin of angry mobs with anchor tats and mangy dogs in vacant lots
Traded any semblance of consistency to play the odds
Not even a baby doll to change his gauze
Not even a hide-away to hide up in
A side effect of sliding environment to environment
Driving isn't simply when the tires spin, try again
Departures and arrivals aren't only time in mileage
Try again again a raider break off from the phalanx
And never look back never cook crack K thanks bye
New York in the rear view then peel...

Out, til he found New York in the windshield
 These cursed dogs
 Those flying spears
 This rancid food
 That's why I'm here
 Wild frontier
 (Come on) These fleeting hopes
 Those vital prayers
 This bag of cash
 That's why I'm here
 W-w-w-w-wild frontier
 This was never an effective way to rally insurgents
 Or really even the occupation of a rational person
 When you write about seclusion and some buyers finally tune in
 You get frightened finding happiness can drive away the movement
 In a jiffy, just eat your food and keep the future iffy
 That fruition's for the viewers who need a loser to pity
 Plus an underlying message of a greater disconnection
 God forbid he try to live or gain momentum
 Mend or pay his penance
 You'd rather see him eat a bowl of mouse traps
 Surf a thousand couches
 Take a jagged little down the hatch
 Chowder heads
 I know you love the way the failure flounder
 Maybe I could be your daily downer
 If his brain left his body and was headed for the door
 Would you take it and then help it find its way into a jar?
 No? fuck it, let him hop around a maze
 We can see who's really lost when the schadenfreude fades
 These churning seas
 Those quiet sneers
 This box of parts
 That's why I'm here
 Wild frontier
 (Come on) These creepy friends
 Those dicey dares
 This perfect dark
 That's why I'm here
 W-w-w-w wild frontier
