Pieces

Fool's Garden

Hello, who are you? I never saw this girl before I was astonished as can be Somebody told me she said you're just a hungry little guy So I would like to offer me to bake some cake for you The sweetest one you've ever tried A special cake for you The one that makes you satisfied Good-bye sadness, I'm dreamin' while you slip away She took me by the hand She really took me by surprise One piece of cake was not enough And so I helped myself We danced in fool's paradise and I got drunk of all the love Then I realized she moved her velvet body over mine I felt like melting ice I just admit this woman was divine Hey, hey, madness, I'm Dreamin' while you slip awayWhile Buddy the sweeper was singing a sad song And Mary the singer swept the street The honeymoon's floating over the river Your cake is sweet I had a heartache All the pain was over now She said: "Bye, bye, little babe" It was nice to meet you She closed her eyes and disappeared I hope some day we'll meet again If apple or cherry-pie you honey-bee I love the way you bake Your cakes are wonderful Don't care about my stomach-ache Good-bye sadness, I'm dreamin' while you slip awayWhile Buddy the sweeper was singing a sad song And Mary the singer swept the street The honeymoon's floating over the river Your cake is sweet

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://www.lsonglyrics.com/