

Cry Like a Ghost

Passion Pit

I'm on my own where I found you alone
You were caught up in somebody else's mess
And yes, I drank all those drinks on my own
My life's become some blurry little quest
And the clock kept ticking slowly
And you leaned over and asked me
If I even had a clue where I was
Well, lie down on wood floor
And my brain and body took us
In the night and then as though it never was
It all began to feel insane
I wanna know where they keep the rain
Silvia, right back where you came from
You're a pendulum, heartbroken in number
Silvia, no one's gonna tell you when enough's enough
Enough is enough
Sick to the bone on my steps to my home
The moon shines through the drapery and leaves
To her to ignore everyone of my own
My true love just to feel some made-up breeze
But as my body crumbled, you walked as I just stumbled
And we spoke only of things made in my head
You never once controlled me, what all the others told me
But if I kept on going I'd be dead
It's not just you who felt the pain
Now tell me where they keep the rain
Silvia, right back where you came from
You're a pendulum, heartbroken in number
Silvia, no one's gonna tell you when enough's enough
Enough's always too tough
See what I've done now, I don't understand
She says I screamed and I that I raised my hand
But I never meant to, wasn't even there
I never meant to, I would never dare
Silvia, right back where you came from
You're a pendulum, heartbroken in number
Silvia, no one's gonna tell you when enough's enough
Enough is enough

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://www.1songlyrics.com/>

